Dear Mr Bridge,

19th April 2010.

Dr Sarah Myhill is the Aerotoxic Association medical adviser on Aerotoxic syndrome, a little known serious medical condition which can affect anybody who is exposed to toxic oil fumes within the confines of a jet aeroplane and known about since 1999.

Please see enclosed information sheet from Dr Myhill and MS 17 a UK HSE document which summarizes the ill health effects from organophosphates, which I am sure you are familiar with.

I understand that Dr Myhill will face a GMC enquiry into her fitness to practice on 29th April 2010.

I would suggest that Dr Myhill is an outstanding doctor who has identified the fundamental cause of many people's ill health and that it would appear that some unnamed doctors are determined to ignore her inconvenient findings, this leaves many people wondering over their fitness to practice and whether they are obeying the Hippocratic Oath?

I would be grateful if you could register the Aerotoxic Association's disgust at Dr Myhill's latest treatment and suggest that her unique, successful work with organophosphate (OP) poisoning and treatment is the real reason for trying to silence her.

Fortunately, many other 'good' doctors around the world are now quickly understanding the real health effects of OP poisoning and you would be well advised to allow Dr Myhill to continue her good work for the benefit of all.

Yours sincerely,

John Hoyte
Chairman Aerotoxic Association
OPUS Committee member.
Former BAe 146 Training Captain.
